Presenters

Cyle Stewart is a patient family research partner with the FARMh Initiative. Cyle attended college in Montana on a bull riding scholarship and rode bulls professionally until a series of head injuries forced an early retirement. With prior experience in sports-related head injuries and knowledge of present day ranching challenges, Cyle has an insightful perspective on the topic of farmer/rancher mental health.

Michelle Pavloff is a registered nurse and rural health researcher. She is currently the research chair of rural health at Saskatchewan Polytechnic and is the principal investigator of the FARMh Initiative. Her areas of research include patient oriented research, rural nursing, rural youth mental health, and farmer/rancher mental health.

Participants will need to sign up at the link below and then once they have registered, they will receive a link to access the webinar on September 28th at 6:30pm.
