RE: Provincial Medical Assistance in Dying Manager

We are pleased to announce Allison Saxby, as the new Provincial Medical Assistance in Dying (MAID) Manager, effective January 5, 2026.

Allison joins the program with over 19 years of nursing experience and more than five years of leadership experience within the SHA. She brings expertise in patient and family centered care, strategic planning, relationship building, and leading meaningful system improvements. Throughout her career, Allison has demonstrated a strong commitment to evidence-based practice, culturally responsive care, and supporting teams in complex clinical environments.

Allison has held several key management roles within Primary Health Care and HealthLine 811, where she supported large, multidisciplinary teams, led COVID-19 response initiatives, and collaborated with diverse partners across the health system. Most recently, she has continued her frontline work as a staff nurse in the NICU and as a Tissue Coordinator with the Organ and Tissue Donation Program. Her clinical expertise, coupled with her operational experience, positions her well to support the continued growth and development of MAID services across Saskatchewan.

We are very pleased to welcome Allison to the MAID program and look forward to the leadership, stability, and thoughtful approach she will bring to this important and sensitive area of care.

Allison can be reached by email: allison.saxby@saskhealthauthority.ca or 306-766-6016
